Tratek Monitoring Services, known for supplying electronic monitoring devices for various applications, has now introduced a high-quality alcohol detection and monitoring system for the hospitality industry that will prove if the staff is drinking on the job, or if there are any inventory discrepancies.

To discreetly check if your staff is drinking on the job, observe their behavior for signs like noticeable changes in mood or performance, inconsistent drink preparation, frequent trips to the back area, slurred speech, bloodshot eyes, unusual clumsiness, excessive sweating, or a strong scent of alcohol; you can also monitor their drink orders and inventory to look for discrepancies.

Key points to watch for:

Behavioral Changes:

- Sudden mood swings, becoming overly friendly or aggressive.
- Unusual behavior compared to their normal routine.
- Difficulty focusing or completing tasks accurately.

Physical Signs:

- Bloodshot eyes
- Slurred speech
- Unusually clumsy movements
- Excessive sweating
- Strong odor of alcohol

Drink Preparation Inconsistencies:

- Pouring noticeably larger drinks than usual
- Making frequent mistakes in drink orders
- Taking longer than usual to prepare drinks

Inventory Discrepancies:

- Missing bottles or unexplained shortages in inventory
- Frequent trips to the back area, especially when not serving customers
